

SWANSON & COSGRAVE
CONSULTING LLC

Providing coaching, training, and design for educators who we are

Our core team consists of educator-consultants Michelle Swanson and Theron Cosgrave. With over 40 years of combined experience designing projects for our own classrooms and with hundreds of teachers across the nation, Michelle and Theron can bring valuable expertise and know-how to your school setting.

project-based learning training

S&CC helps high school teachers plan and deliver engaging classroom projects that meet rigorous academic standards for all content areas. Customized PBL training sessions feature the following topics:

- designing projects to meet academic standards
- integrated project design
- the “Six A’s” of quality projects
- project models, formats, and exemplars
- scaffolding key project implementation supports
- the “Nine Steps” of project implementation
- project assessment and evaluation
- differentiated instruction & raising student work quality

pathway & academy design

S&CC works with teachers in schools nationwide to design and implement small schools and small learning community programs. Key topics addressed in training and facilitation sessions include:

- school/pathway themes, outcomes, and design principles
- curricular mapping and integrated project development
- strategies for building a classroom community committed to equity
- using data to shape curriculum and instruction
- business partnership development
- student internships and exit portfolios
- school/program evaluation and communication strategies
- arts-themed schools, academies, and pathways, including arts-based project design

contact us

To learn more about our services, fees, and available training dates, visit us online (www.swansonandcosgrave.com), e-mail us (michelle@swansonandcosgrave.com), or call us at (541) 543-9179.